SUBJECT: DI Support to the Congress

The Directorate of Intelligence plays a major role in providing substantive intelligence support to the Congress. In 1986, for example, we provided nearly 600 briefings and over 3,500 documents to the Hill. The scope of our efforts ranges from providing unclassified biographic material to Congressional delegations traveling abroad to providing highly sensitive assessments on topics as diverse as prospects for Afghanistan, third world debt, Soviet military capabilities, and arms control verification. Our customers include Members of the Senate and House and those staffers with appropriate security clearances. We also support Congressional Committees, with our major efforts focused on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Defense Subcommittees of the two Appropriations Committees, both Armed Services Committees, and the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees. The Directorate has a reputation for unbiased and objective reporting on the Hill, which in part accounts for the extensive support we are called on to provide.
